MOVING FORWARD IN A TIME OF PARADOX

He is an individual, he is a non-conformist, he is a real person.

Yet, if he desires, he can become faceless, he can be called a conformist, just another number on a blue computer card.

He faces trials by which other generations have never been tormented, while continuing to battle the ageless ones.

He strives to move forward in every aspect of life. He will have four careers in his lifetime. His ability to calculate has increased 500 million times in the past twenty years.

He lives in a time of paradox. A time of happiness and of sorrow, a time of the new and of the old.

He is more aware, more sympathetic, more concerned than any generation before him. The answers are almost at his fingertips—almost.

He is neither frustrated nor satisfied. He gives and he receives. He is at peace, he is at war.

This is the college student of today, but more specifically this is the Lipscomb student.

And to him we dedicate this book with the hope that at least part of it can be applied to his complex life.

ken slater

A time of birth; a time of death.
A time of togetherness; a time of loneliness.

A time of happiness; a time of sadness.

This is the time of paradox: the age which has today's college student as its nucleus. He is in the midst of the entire spectrum; looking at both ends, learning from both ends.

The crucial question is which way will he turn after he has observed and learned.

A time of the old; a time of the new.

A time to tear down; a time to build up.

A time of affluence; a time of poverty.

A time to learn from one another—the young from the old and the old from the young.

He must look at the past generation and at the future
one and then decide which way to go. He must choose not because of popular opinion but because of personal belief.

A time of the individual;
a time of the group.

This is the time of paradox.

Interview

Involvement Is The Key: Shelby

"I haven't got time today—maybe tomorrow." "So, who cares? What difference does it make, anyway?" "I'm not about to get involved." "Don't get my name into it."

Perhaps no feeling is more characteristic of modern society as apathy. It is an admission of weakness to care, to want to do something. No one is willing to do the "little things" which used to mean so much.

And the college student is by no means immune, not even the Lipscomb college student. He has a choice; he can remain aloof, live in his own world, or he can take the giant step called "getting involved." The opportunities are undeniably present at Lipscomb, but each student must decide his own course.

Staton Shelby is involved, actively involved. He is in Circle K, a service club; that means doing something for somebody. He is on the President's Student Council; that means working with somebody. He is in Delta Nu, a social club; that means enjoying people.

Even when he is not working with a specific organization, he still finds time to do something, to be busy.

"Staton is the kind of guy you want to work with whenever you can," Ken Durham, 1969 student body president said. "He never lets you down; he knows what it means to get a job done."

"Four years at Lipscomb has been a very sobering experience for me. Sobering but meaningful," Staton reflects.

"When I look back I wonder if I have gotten enough from college to make the future successful and enjoyable, but I know I have; the people alone have made it worthwhile.

"As I look around campus I see many changes," says Staton. "I see new buildings, but I really see a new kind of student."

He sees an interested student. One who cares about life, about Lipscomb and about the world.

"I'm proud of our generation; we are becoming involved. We want to get up and actively make some changes in the world. I don't mean violence or rebellion; I mean advancement and progress."

Staton feels he has also seen many social innovations at Lipscomb during his four years.

"The change to the smaller social club system from the Greek letter clubs has helped to satisfy more individual needs," he said. "I just wish more people would participate and become part of these organizations."

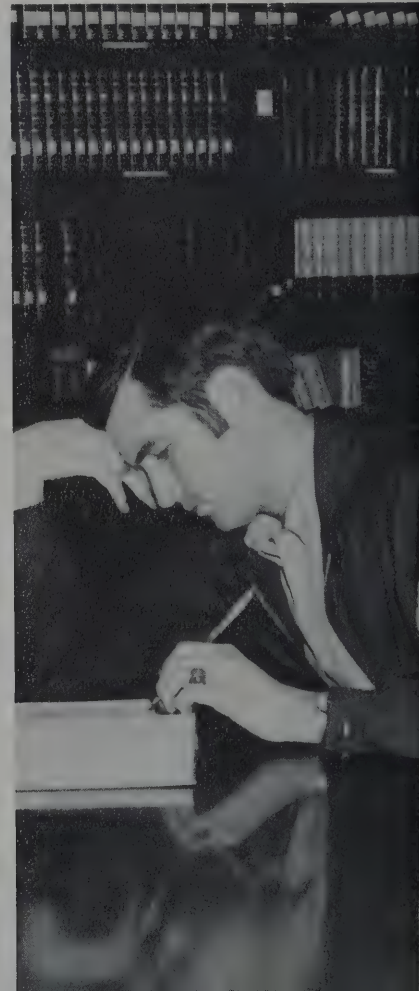

Some things, however, seem to resist even the slightest change. "After my first year here," Staton said, "the years seemed to melt into one. Like everyone else I am going to leave with mixed emotions—glad to be through, yet apprehensive about the future."

"All in all my life at Lipscomb has been a great experience. I hope others can say the same when they are ready to leave."

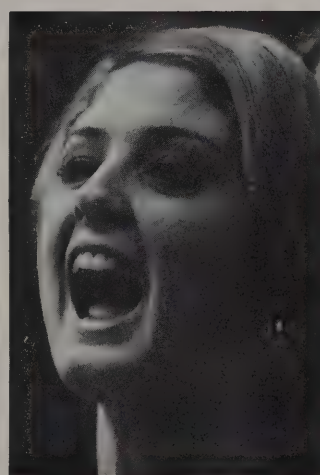

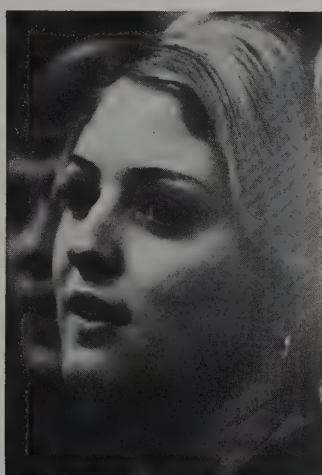

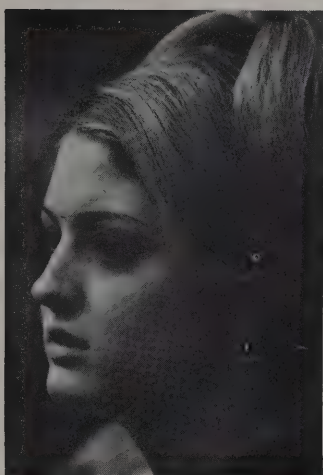

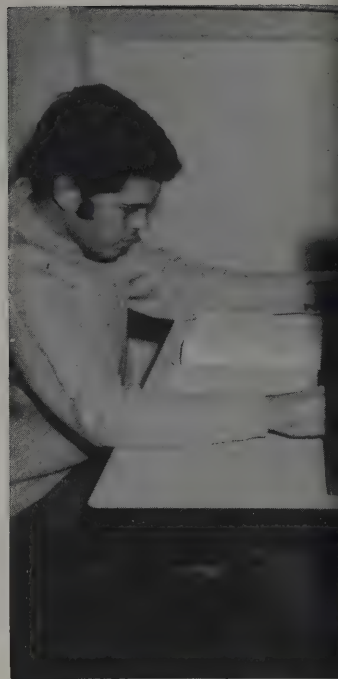

When he thinks of yesterday, he thinks of college where everything begins and everything ends. He remembers college faces—faces he encountered working, studying, dating; faces he lived with and worshiped with. The faces remind him of times when he felt just among the people; yet some would smile—a smile which said “hello.” He recalls the feeling of belonging as sometimes he would pause and solve the world’s problems with a friend. Yet, everyone was turning, seeing and being seen, searching to find themselves. The smiles and faces remind him HE WAS AN INDIVIDUAL AND HE BELONGED.

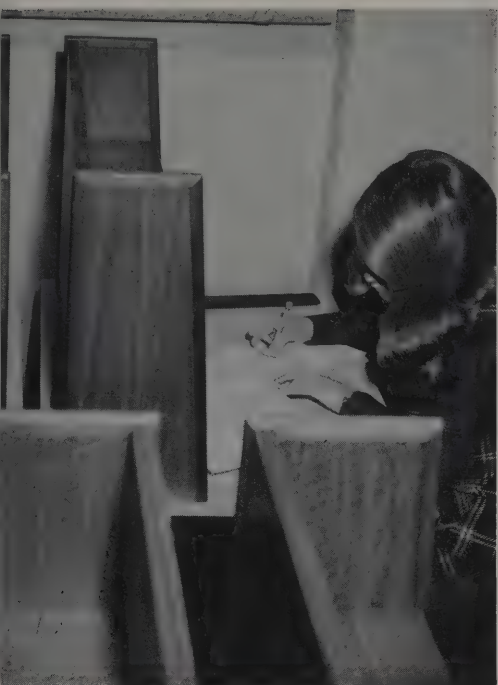

He thinks of morning classes, his chair patiently waiting as his bed steals his loyalty—or he just cuts. Maybe it was the grandeur of a rejuvenating spring morning; but some classes were tolerable, so he succumbed. Even in the library as he quietly studied, always the sound of life—intruding his privacy! But again he studied, for college had provided him time for education—from books, from life.

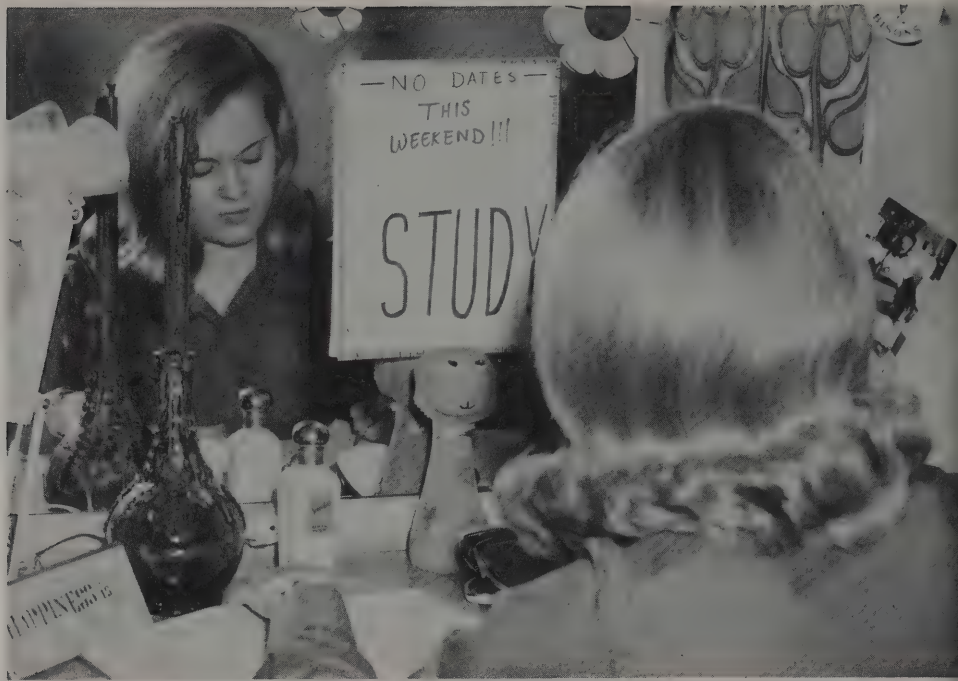

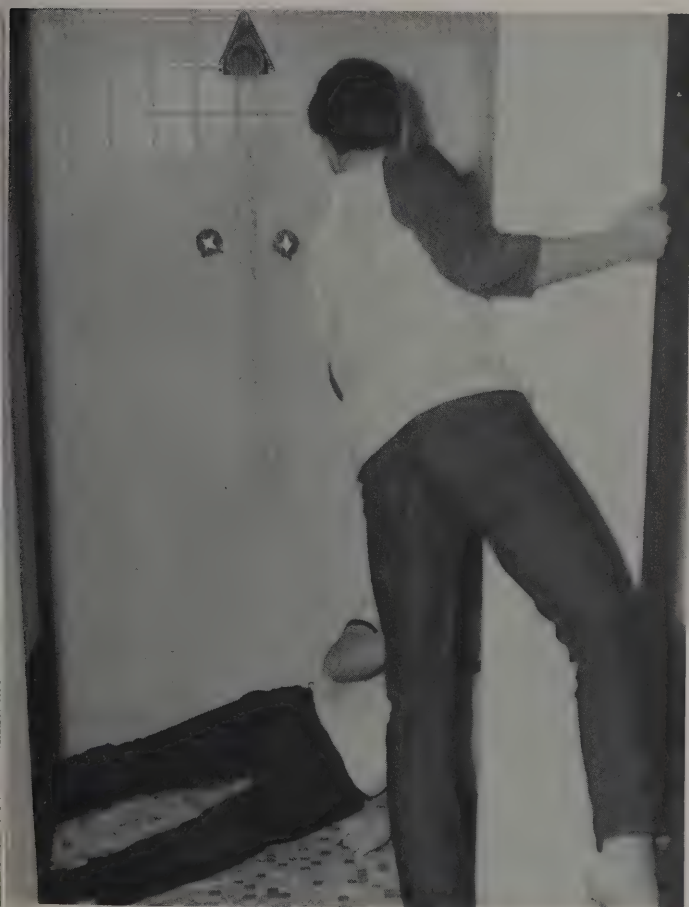

What does a year at DLC give him besides that time for education? A time for him to search for a deeper self in his life. There are times when he as a student is alone—times when he can think and form his own opinions of right and wrong. Whether it be walking in the rain or sitting in the reverence of a church building, he feels the peacefulness of solitude. Under the sky, alone or at a devotional, he feels the power of God. Yet, there are Saturdays when he can joyfully play with children—finding himself as he finds them.

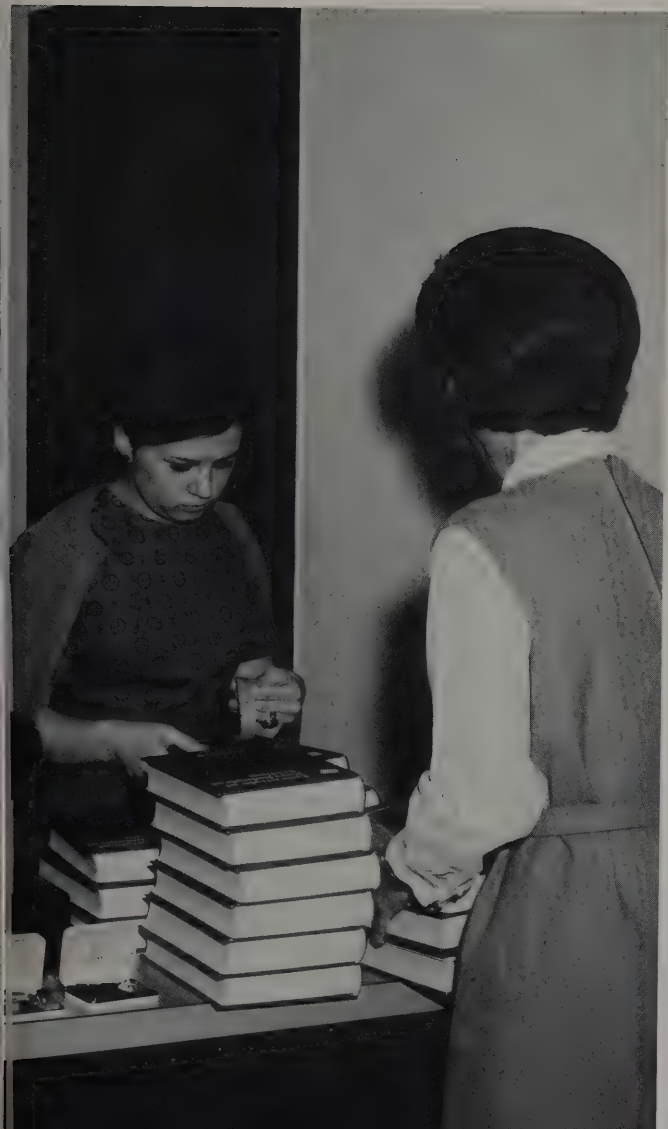

His year was intimately shared with his friends in the dorm. In early morning rap sessions he built lifetime friendships. Even when half asleep, they were sustained by popcorn, cynicism and concerned sincerity. They fought, they contrived, they worshiped together—in fives, in tens, in twos—comrades sealed by a common devotion. Necessities of life? The phone and the vending machine—what else is there? Living together was a unique experience, one their children will relive in memories, as they lovingly humor their ancient parents.

Money—what a glorious word to the college student. The aspiring scholar may leave home with a full pocket; soon it's gone. The only alternative—work. He may find himself faced with a grill, a freezer, hunger-haunted faces and outstretched hands. He could wind up at the front desk between phone messages, note pads and visitors. Frenzied moments at the switchboard, hushed minutes frisking briefcases in the library—Oh, what one must endure for the luxury of lucre! And then to have to make the awesome trip to the bookstore and return with empty billfold and a handful of books. Money—a word of security, a word that requires work.

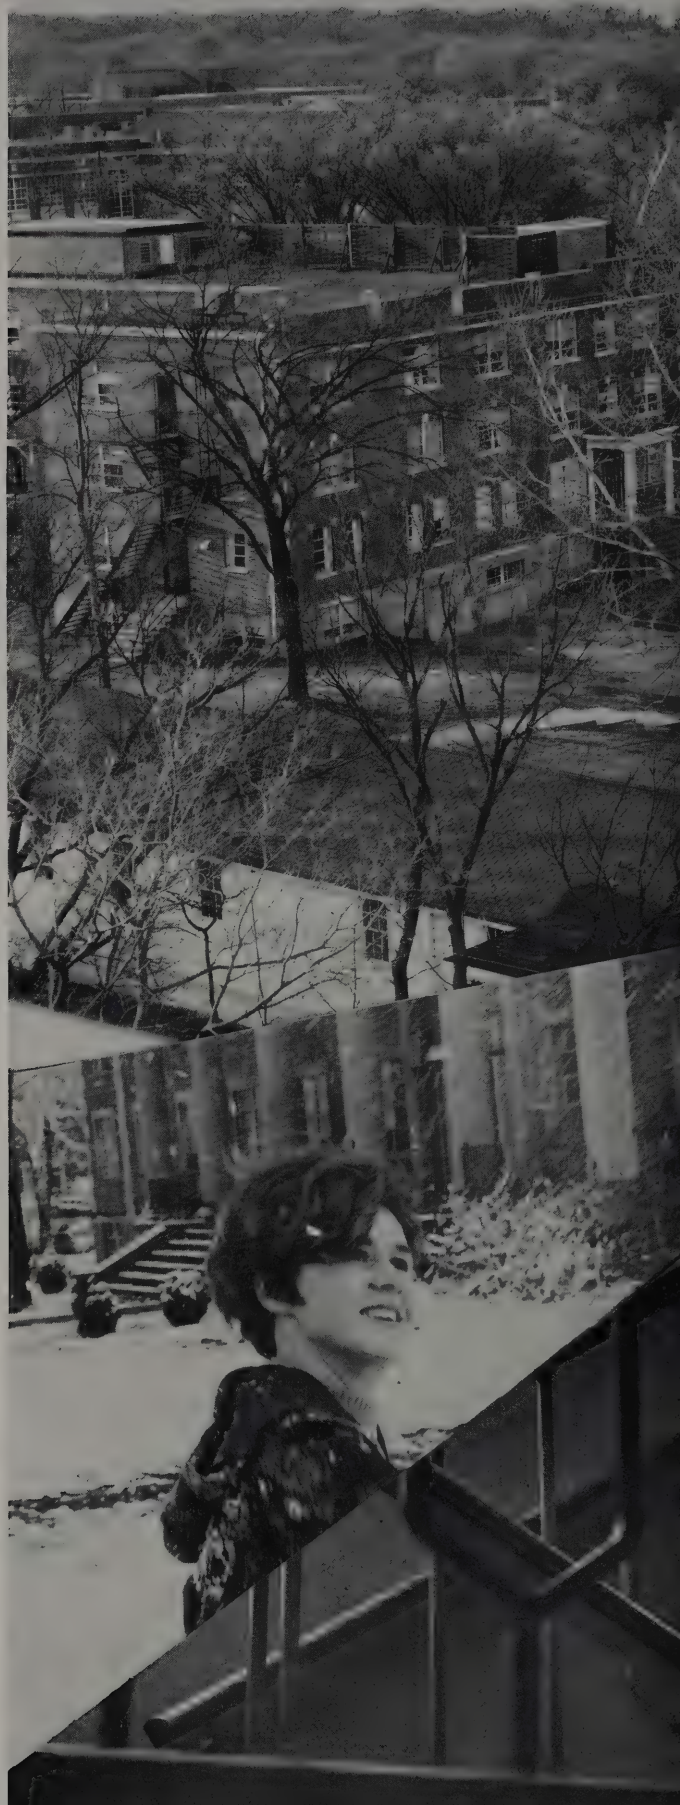

There were carefree days; and dreamy nights. Differences dissolved in a "Psychedelic Delicatessen" or a luau. They were young adults, no longer students, sharing together, being entertained by each other, but all the time learning, teaching. Classes? They were in that other world, the weekday world that ended as abruptly on Friday as it started on Monday. This was the time for the escape world, released from the uptight anxiety contained in fifty minute capsules, free from the bondage of time (till curfew, that is).

For him there was a special kind of loving in a year at DLC. Going from day to day—moving upward, falling down. But no matter which way he went, he found that special something—a love for life. He saw it as he studied, as he played. No one can apprehend the total experience of DLC. It was an experience he will not soon forget. He came, he stayed, he is gone.

effect, too, on how long our students stay with us."

Dr. Samples considers academic progress a two-fold effort, with both faculty and students contributing.

"Even in the four years I've been here, there has been an impressive increase in the number of Ph.D.'s on the faculty. And even those not working on any further degree are always involved in research or some special study of one sort or another.

"It seems, too, that constant improvement in facilities and acquisition of more specialized equipment add to the upgrading of our academic program. Walk through the Science Building and take a closer look at its offerings.

"The student part of academic development is probably the most crucial. Lipscomb students seem to be more serious-minded, maybe because of the increased emphasis on graduate studies or because of the greater professional demands.

"Then, too, as Lipscomb has approached capacity enrollment, admission has become and will continue to become more selective.

"The emphasis Lipscomb places on academic excellence has already shown its worth. Our graduates are being offered more fellowships and assistantships by major universities than ever. They are presenting qualifications which attract both educational and industrial leaders.

"I keenly feel Lipscomb offers its students as sound an academic atmosphere as any school. And that's our purpose."

Betty Wheeler

"I've decided that one of the major reasons Lipscomb's academic atmosphere is constantly improving is the close faculty-student contact." And as director of testing and guidance, Dr. Ralph Samples is in a position to make such an evaluation.

"For the most part, our students are conscientious and have many potentially valuable suggestions to make. The faculty is well-trained, willing to listen and ready to implement whatever seems advantageous to improve academic quality.

"In fact, most department heads in larger schools seldom have any contact with lowerclassmen and certainly not freshmen. But here Dr. Netterville may teach Fundamentals of Chemistry and Senior Seminar in the same morning. Or Dean Craig meet senior Bible at 8 and freshman Bible at 9. That has to have some

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

IN MEMORIAM

J. E. Acuff continues to set before all those interested in Christian education a pattern of life worthy of imitation.

Death came in the eighty-ninth year of this man who had served on the Lipscomb Board of Directors since 1943. Highly respected and skilled as a businessman, he devoted a major portion of his time to preaching and to his work as an elder of the Charlotte Avenue Church of Christ.

His generosity of self was coupled with gifts of well over a quarter of a million dollars to Lipscomb. Acuff Chapel stands as a monument to his efforts to bless the lives of young people.

A man of highest devotion and respect, J. E. Acuff remains a powerful influence in the entire realm of Christian living.

To one fixed trust my spirit clings;
I know that God is good!

Bill and Vicki Lipscomb's Best

"A sweeping change in student attitudes is taking place. The college student, now searching for meaning and purpose, is becoming more perceptive and more aware."

Lipscomb's students have cast their ballots for involvement, for concern, for new ideals. Vicki Shaub and Bill Burton have become the models for the portrait of Lipscomb's ideal students.

Vicki predicts that relationships among people, like everything else, will continue to be in cycles.

"For example, with this college's diversified student body, there will always be some indifferent and bitter students because of the nature of the school."

However, this is hardly the case with "Miss Lipscomb" herself. Not really a "Miss," Mrs. Bob Shaub is a top biology student who feels that extracurricular activities are an integral part of every student's college life. She is a Bisonette, a member of Kappa Chi social club, a representative on the President's Student Council and a Campus Beauty.

"Bachelor of Ugliness" Bill Burton shares Vicki's feeling that "every person has something about which he is totally indifferent that another may feel is of utmost importance. These problems will always be with man; they will never be solved; they can be lessened."

And this highly respected "Bachelor" is not waiting for graduation to do his part to lessen the problems he faces. A mathematics major, Bill consistently maintains his position on the Honor Roll. But academics alone are not responsible for his listing in "Who's Who In American Universities and Colleges." President of Tau Phi social club, Circle K board member, President's Student Council delegate and co-captain of the varsity basketball team—all are consistent with Bill's feeling that each student must actively change his world.

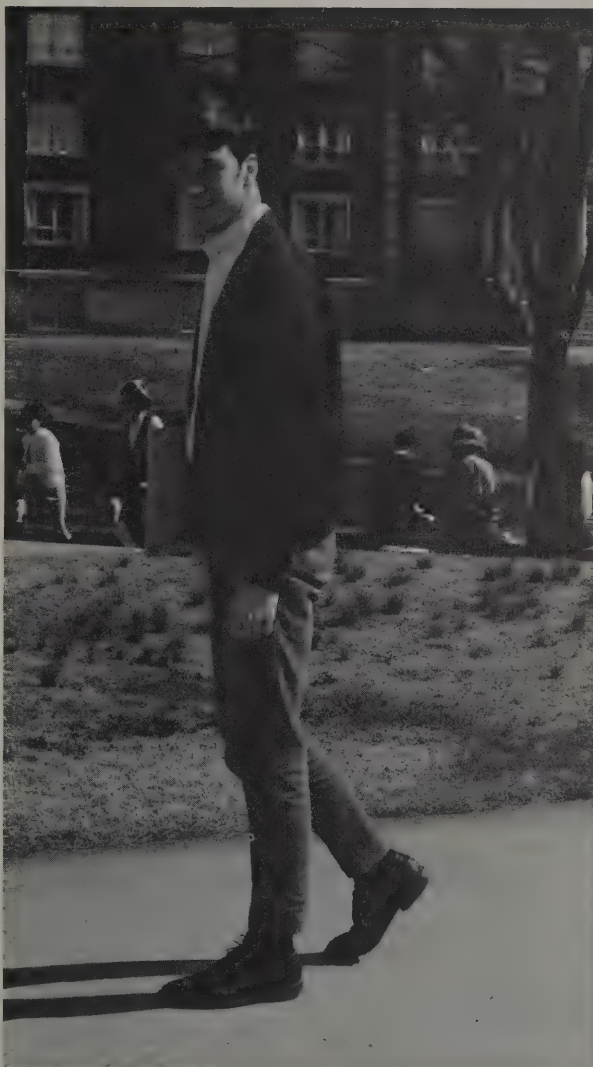

Vicki and Bill are both very much aware of the effects national and international strife are having on today's college student.

"The student now feels, more than ever, that he has a right to challenge and the responsibility to question.

"Our world must choose to live in peace or to die in war," continues Bill. "There is no such thing nowadays as a local or national war—not really. War anywhere affects people everywhere."

Concludes Vicki, "Any of these problems can be solved, but our pride and selfishness make most solutions never happen."

But Vicki and Bill will never add to that pride and selfishness which impede understanding.

HOMECOMING

A week for excitement, an hour for royalty, and a moment for reflection; all are vital times in any homecoming at Lipscomb. Students put hard work and all their imagination into exhibits, and the basketball team hopes for a victory. The Bisonettes and band practice, and the royalty is chosen. The day is anticipated with fervor and realized with pride.

Late in February, Homecoming, 1970, was staged in the regally-decorated gymnasium. Following a program by the concert band and against a colorful backdrop featuring sunburst light ornaments, the royalty was presented to a capacity crowd. Climaxing the ceremonies was the crowning of Queen Judy Beck by President Athens Clay Pullias. Dean Mack Wayne Craig announced the winners of the exhibit competition among the social clubs. The Bisonettes presented a special show, the game was played, and Homecoming, 1970, was a memory.

FESTIVAL OF HEARTS

The magical and miraculous "Age of Aquarius" transformed Lipscomb into a mystical realm of beauty for the Festival of Hearts held the evening of Homecoming. This annual presentation gives twelve girls chosen earlier in student elections the opportunity to vie for the six Campus Beauty finalists. The winners are chosen on the basis of poise, personality and beauty as they model and answer questions for the judges.

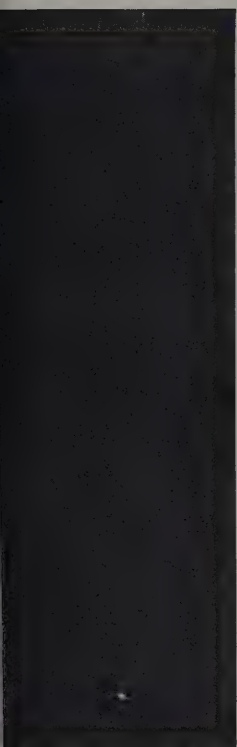

Madrigal the Magician aided the audience in capturing the zodiac spirit by performing baffling feats with the help of the alluring contestants. The Eleventh Hour blended their voices producing a harmonious complement to the magical setting. Questions concerning each girl's own sign were posed by Dean Mack Wayne Craig who met the beauty as she advanced through the crystal ball.

The lucky stars definitely ruled that night for six winning coeds who preside over Lipscomb as the official Campus Beauties.

WHO'S WHO

"Who's Who In American Universities and Colleges" is an honor accorded to thirty of Lipscomb's senior students each year. They are chosen for academic excellence, contributions to the school and outstanding character traits. Throughout the years these students have portrayed the high standards of Lipscomb as its national student ideals.

Mike Adams

Bruce Breegle

Adams: Elected President of Circle K International in August, 1969, Mike was also president of Pi Kappa Delta speech fraternity and a member of Alpha Tau Social Club. An outstanding speech scholar, he placed second in the Founder's Day Oratorical Contest in 1967 and 1968.

Breegle: Bruce served as Student Body President for winter and spring of 1970 as well as being a regular preacher. An affiliate of Delta Nu Social Club, Circle K International, SNEA, and Footlighters, he won first place both in the 1969 Oratorical Contest and in Men's Intramural Extemporaneous Speaking.

Brock: Sports editor of the Babbler and statistician of the Bison basketball team, Lindsey served as treasurer of Lipscomb's Circle K Club and as vice-president of Tau Phi Social Club. An accounting major from Oklahoma City, he was often on the Honor Roll or Dean's List, played in intramurals, and was a member of the band his freshman year.

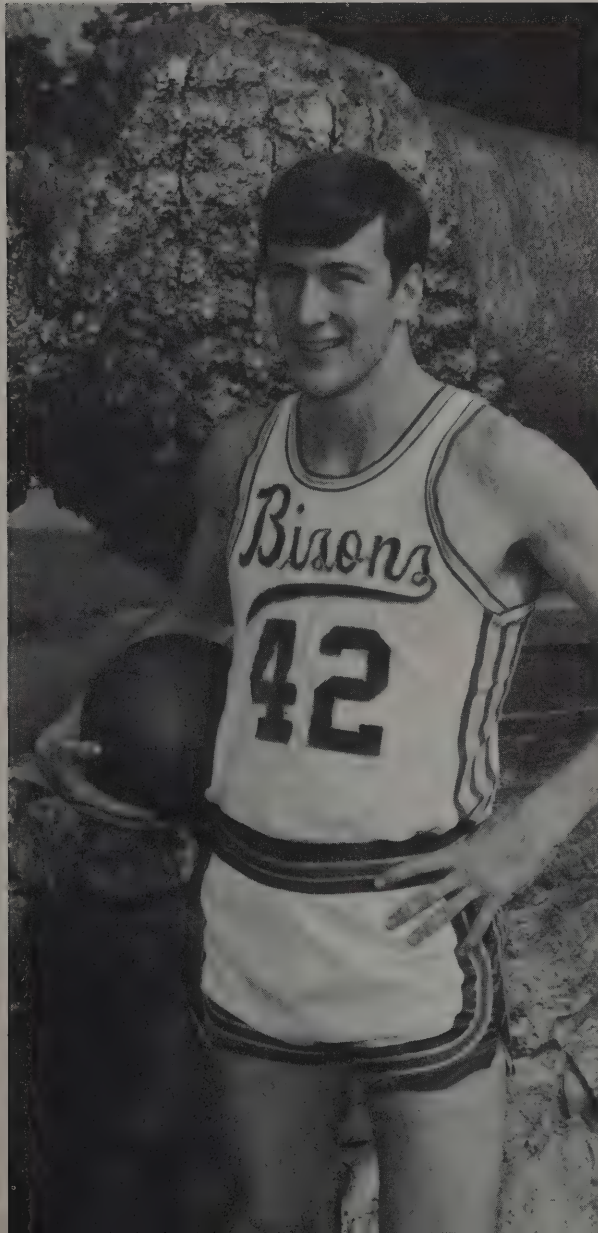

Lindsey Brock

Mary Burton

Burton: Serving as president and court director of the Bisonettes her senior year and as vice-president her junior year, math major Mary maintained her honor scholarship with places on the Dean's List and Honor Roll. A Nashville resident, her other activities included President's Student Council, vice-president of Psi Alpha Social Club, Hospital Singers, and math assistant.

Ron Coles

Coles: As president of Mission Emphasis and a regular youth advisor, Ron participated in Campaigns for Christ in Maryland, South Carolina, Vermont, Florida, Michigan, and in Belfast, North Ireland. A religious education and accounting major, he was treasurer of Pi Omicron, a member of Chi Alpha Rho and the President's Student Council.

Bill Burton

Burton: Active in athletics and in extracurricular clubs, Bill was co-captain of the Bison basketball team his senior year having played varsity basketball for three years. A mathematics major and often on the Dean's List, he was president of Tau Phi Social Club, on the Board of Directors of Circle K, and a member of Hospital Singers.

Craig: Serving as a cheerleader for three years, as vice-president of Delta Nu Social Club, and as treasurer of Circle K, Nashvillian Larry was elected a Homecoming Representative for two years and won the essay contest at the Circle K Convention. Vice-president of Phi Alpha Theta and president of the former Delta Club, he was active in Singarama, Babbler staff, and Hospital Singers.

Larry Craig

Craig: Singing and acting are synonymous with Campus Beauty finalist Mary Lou as she was in A Cappella, Footlighters, Hospital Singers, and numerous plays including Annie Get Your Gun, Spoon River Anthology, and Brigadoon. Homecoming Representative, Football Queen attendant, and member of Psi Alpha Social Club, she received the "Best Actress" award for the one-act plays.

Mary Lou Craig

Barbara Crouch

Crouch: Listed often on the Honor Roll and Dean's List and the recipient of an honor scholarship, Barbara was a member of the Backlog staff, Zeta Omega Social Club, and Mission Emphasis. She worked with PAL, Campaigns for Christ, and was a delegate to the state SNEA Convention.

Donnell: A transfer from Cumberland College in Lebanon, Tennessee, Mary Ann distinguished herself there as editor of the newspaper, a member of the Honor Council, and valedictorian of her graduating class. At Lipscomb she majored in elementary education and was on the Honor Roll consistently.

Mary Ann Donnell

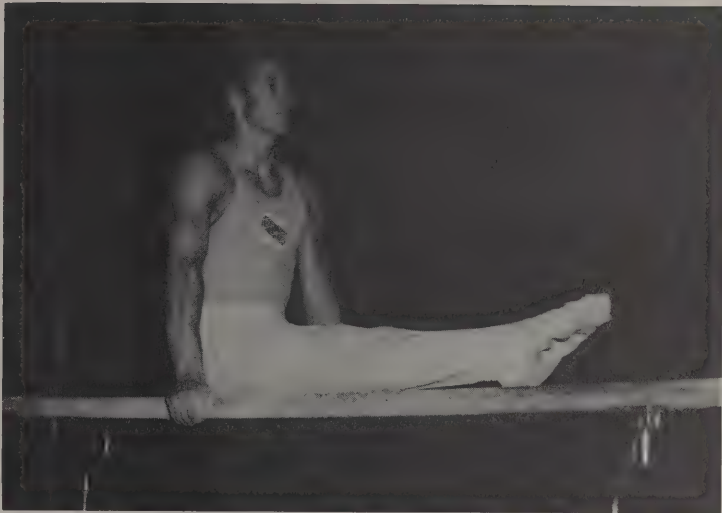

Dan DeLoach

Ken Durham

Marilyn Epperly

Dave Fennessey

DeLoach: An outstanding speaker and debater, Dan participated in tournaments in Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Georgia, consistently being on the winning team. From Hialeah, Florida, he was a member of Pi Kappa Delta speech fraternity and Chi Alpha Rho preacher's club.

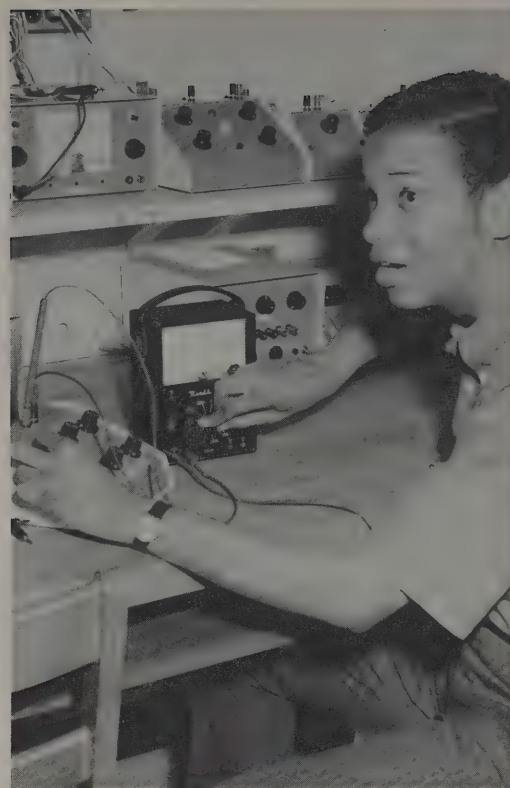

Durham: Student Body President for summer and fall of 1969, Ken participated three years in track and set the school record in the triple jump. This speech education major was president of Hospital Singers, and a member of Circle K, Press Club, Tau Phi Social Club, and President's Student Council.

Epperly: Marilyn succeeded both in speech and art by working on play productions such as Annie Get Your Gun and in Singarama. A Bisonette, Footlighter, and member of the President's Student Council, she served as president of Theta Tau Epsilon Social Club, secretary of Tau Beta, and secretary of Pi Kappa Delta.

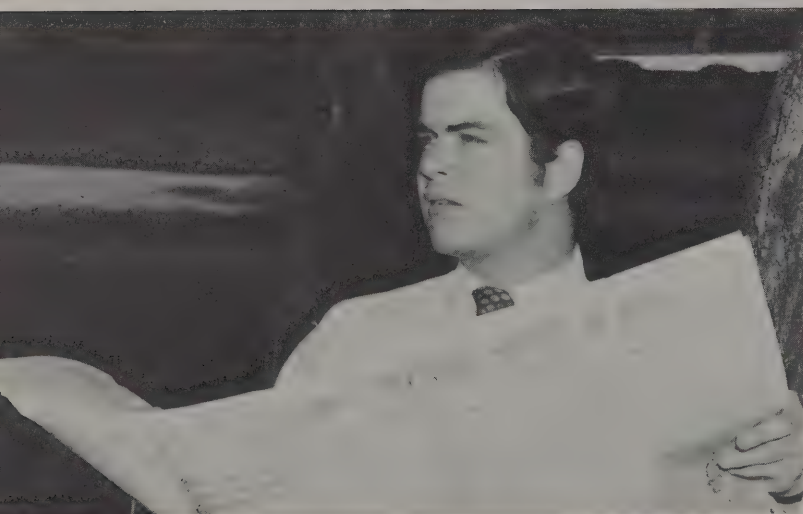

Fennessey: As a member of the 1969 NAIA All-American Gymnastics Team, Dave represented Lipscomb well by excelling in all events. An affiliate of Tau Sigma Social Club and Pi Epsilon physical education fraternity, the Wheaton, Maryland, gymnast was SIGL long horse champion.

Clydetta Fulmer

Carl Helms

William Ingram

Nelson Isonguyo

Fulmer: Well-known artist and editor of the 1969 Backlog, Clydetta was also an affiliate of Psi Alpha Social Club, Collegiate Civinettes, Pi Kappa Delta, Alpha Rho Tau, Pi Delta Epsilon, and the Tennessee Art League. A Dean's List scholar from Montgomery, Alabama, she was in Intercollegiate Debate and won first place in extemporaneous speaking in Intramural Forensics.

Ingram: Active in Campus Evangelism, Bill was chosen to write for Power for Today, and in 1968 attended an Evangelism Seminar in Los Angeles. He served Pi Kappa Delta and Circle K as a member, and Delta Nu Social Club as treasurer.

Helms: Supporting a double major of mathematics and physics, Carl was also elected president of PAL. A member of Tau Phi Social Club, the Board of Directors of Collegiate Civitan, and the President's Student Council, he won the Chemical Rubber Company's Achievement Award in physics. He also served as a judge of the Lipscomb High School Science Fair.

Isonguyo: Working in religious activities on and off campus, Nelson served as vice-president of Chi Alpha Rho as well as being a student preacher. A sociology major and consistent honor student, he is a native of Otoro Proper, Abak, Nigeria.

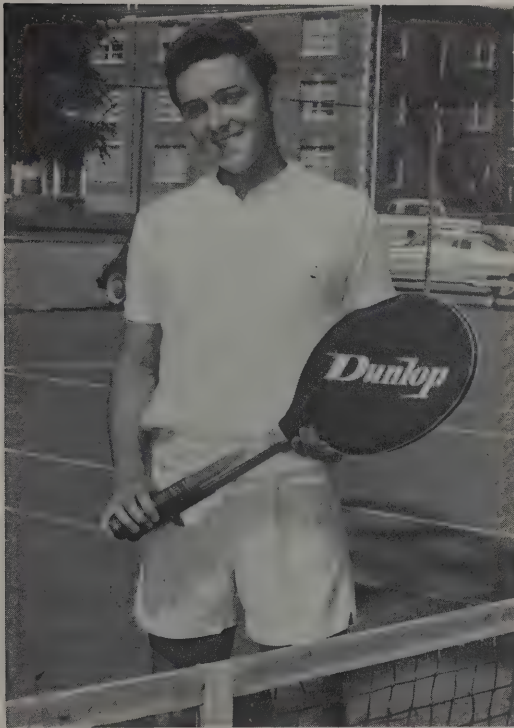

Sheila Jones

Jones: Copy editor of the 1969 Backlog and historian of Psi Alpha Social Club, Sheila was a member of the President's Student Council. She served as treasurer of the Civinettes and secretary for the sophomore class, as well as being on the Honor Roll. This English major was noted for her vivacious spirit displayed for two years as a Bisonette.

Jane Lavender

David Mayo

Mayo: Most Valuable Player for two years on the tennis team, David was a nominee for "Outstanding College Athletes of America." A member of Circle K, French Club, and Delta Nu Social Club, he worked with a local congregation as song leader and youth advisor.

Elizabeth Owen

Lavender: A religious education major, Jane has participated in the Italian mission field for four summers with Project Italy. She was a member of Mission Emphasis, Hospital Singers, and Women's Glee Club. An honor student, she enjoyed speaking to various groups concerning the Italian missions and teaching Bible classes.

Owen: Elizabeth, who has participated in speech tournaments in several states, was elected twice as president of Pi Delta Social Club. A Civinette and member of the Inter-club Council, she pledged Pi Kappa Delta speech fraternity and was a member of the intercollegiate debate team.

Neal: Accounting was no obstacle for athletic Charlie who maintained a place on the Honor Roll with a 3.09 average. From leading the freshman basketball team in 1966-67 as co-captain, he advanced to play varsity basketball for two years.

Robertson: Gamma Chi Social Club member, Bill showed his talents as a natural entertainer verbally and vocally. He was a three-time winner in Tennessee for poetry interpretation, held leading roles in two dramatic productions, and sang his way to first place in the 1966 Press Club Talent Show. President of the junior class, Bill was also in Circle K.

Slater: Selected as editor of the Backlog his senior year, Ken previously served the Babbler staff for three years as well as being its "Most Valuable Staff Member." President of Tau Phi Social Club and Pi Delta Epsilon journalism fraternity, Ken was active in Civitan, Hospital Singers, and senior class activities.

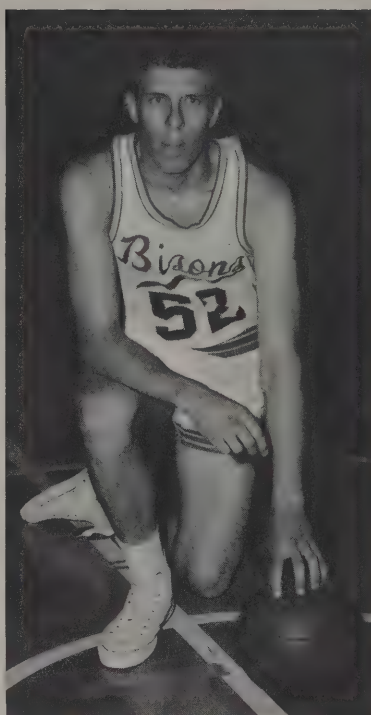

Swaim: A history major from Little Rock, Arkansas, Judy filled her years at Lipscomb with activities which varied from singing in the summer A Cappella to writing for the Babbler. A consistent member of the Honor Roll, she served as secretary-treasurer of Phi Alpha Theta.

Weeks: A varsity cheerleader during her freshman year and a freshman and sophomore class football cheerleader, Carolyn was a member of Civinettes, SNEA, and the President's Student Council. Listed on the Dean's List or Honor Roll every quarter, she was president of Psi Alpha Social Club.

Wiser: Being elected secretary of the student body for fall and winter quarters capped Linda's list of accomplishments including Bisonettes, Civinettes, class cheerleader, Homecoming Representative, and Dean's List. Linda was also president of Psi Alpha Social Club.

Whitehead: Holding positions of first chair clarinet in the Lipscomb Band and a place on the Dean's List or Honor Roll, music education major Sandra easily maintained an honor scholarship. Sandra participated in Tau Epsilon as secretary and Psi Alpha Social Club. She plans to teach music upon graduation.

Worrell: With a double major in speech and drama, Memphian Pam has starred in campus productions such as Macbeth and Man of La Mancha in Singarama. She was a member of the Footlighters, Bisonettes, and Alpha Psi Omega.

Interview

'Fessor: The Athlete's Senior Mentor

In today's "jet set" campus life, we too often take the accomplishments of some faculty members for granted.

One of the victims of student apathy is Eugene "'Fessor" Boyce. Those who appreciate his work the most are students who have worked with him and have been helped by him to achieve great goals.

'Fessor graduated from Lipscomb in the early '30's when it was only a junior college. At that time he was an athlete like those he now coaches.

"It might interest people to know that Dr. Baxter and I were doubles partners in tennis, and we won our conference championship," 'Fessor said with a smile.

As a junior he transferred to Harding College on a tennis scholarship. While at Harding he played in the Arkansas state championship and was runner-up. He was invited to the national championship, but was unable to attend.

Thirty-two years ago 'Fessor came back to Lipscomb as a teacher and a coach.

"It was more or less an accident that I started teaching here," said 'Fessor. "Lipscomb needed an accounting teacher and I happened to have a degree in business administration, so here I am."

Early in his coaching career 'Fessor saw the need for a strong intramural program to complement the varsity program and concentrated on building one.

"Our intramural sports program today compares favorably to any in the country," he believes.

Each year 'Fessor has improved the intramural sports program, adding new rules and regulations in the various events in an effort to make intramural athletics more appealing to all who wish to participate.

'Fessor has had several duties which few people will remember.

"I was coach of the college basketball team from 1943 through 1948. My '48 team was considered a very good team; several times during the season the raters listed us as the number one small college team in the state."

As golf coach 'Fessor coached the 1947, 1958, and 1963 conference championship teams.

Yet 'Fessor's greatest distinction has been as a tennis coach. He has been mentor to a number of state champions, including his sons Terry and Randy and his daughter Nancy.

On his doctor's recommendation 'Fessor resigned his position as department head in 1968. But this has not been without advantage.

"Really I have more time to associate with the students now than I did before, which I like very much."

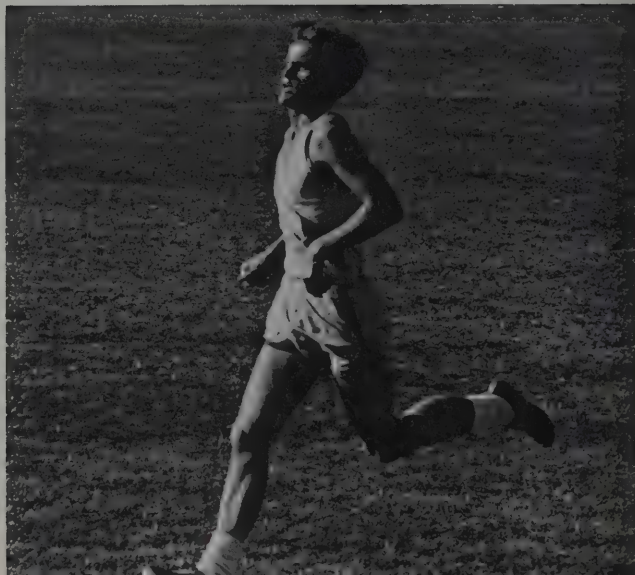

"Now I am in a position to know a lot more of the students and to talk with them a lot more."

'Fessor is willing to do anything he can to help students. "I don't give up too easily on students. And I have great confidence in them, so I'm not ready to throw in the towel yet."

This is why students and former students are grateful for his 32 years of teaching and coaching.

David Glasgow

Rookie Coach Steve Barron inherited a winning tradition in cross country but suffered the loss of record-holder Andy Russell and himself by graduation. His challenge was further compounded by the presence of four freshmen and only three upperclassmen.

Junior Ronnie Cope and freshman Steve Hawkinson consistently captured first and second places in leading their team to a 10-3 record. Senior Buddy Martin, soph Phil Cobb and freshmen Perry Stites, David Craig and Steve Groom backed up the top two with high finishes.

Running in the University Division, the team placed third in this year's TIAC tournament. Hawkinson placed thirty-sixth in a field of over 400 runners in the national NAIA meet, and third among all freshmen.

Lipscomb now boasts a five-year record of 44 wins to only 6 losses in dual meet competition,

GYMNASTICS

Lipscomb's goal of excellence in all fields was again epitomized by the 1970 gymnastics team. Coach Tom Hanvey's gymnasts compiled an outstanding 5-1 record against rigid competition such as the University of Louisville, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Slippery Rock State.

There were two sides to the 1970 Bison gymnastic team. On one hand they rolled up impressive victories in intercollegiate competition; on the other they delighted and thrilled Lipscomb crowds with their antics and skills in basketball half-time exhibitions.

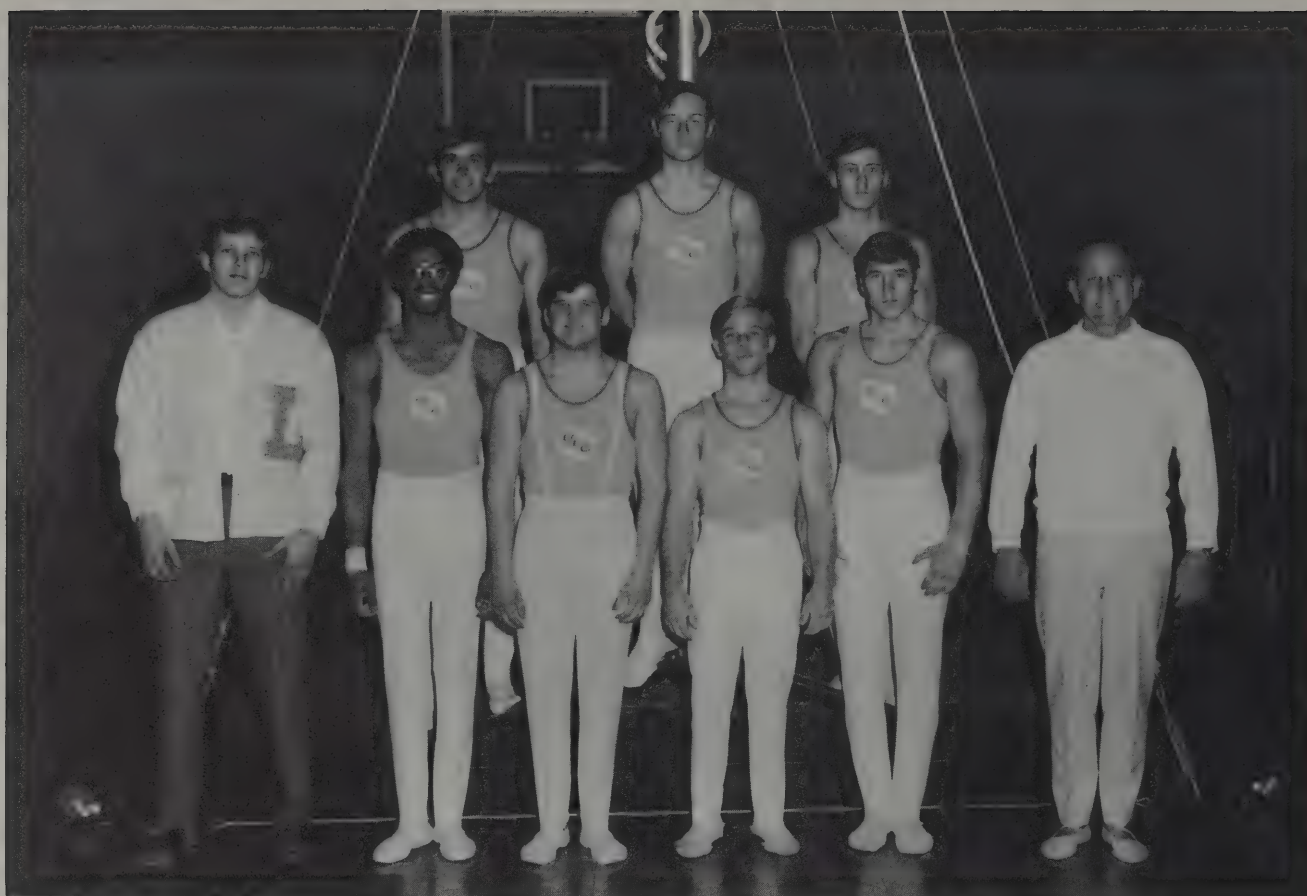

Captain Dave Fennessey, Bison's two time All-American, once again represented Lipscomb well at the NAIA nationals. Steve Bohringer was the only other member of the squad to qualify for the meet as the team failed to score the necessary 130 points in an away meet.

The season's initial problem of depth was solved by men like Ron Yancey and Jerry Guiffre who consistently turned in top performances in the latter part of the season.

BASKETBALL

From an optimistic outlook to a tragic ordeal was the story of the 1969-70 edition of Lipscomb's basketball squad, as the Bisons posted a 6-19 record, their poorest since 1964. Pre-season hopes, based on the return of five lettermen and a host of sharp junior-varsity personnel, were boosted by the addition of Ron Rippetoe, a junior transfer who had earned All-State and All-South laurels in high school.

An opening 78-66 win over Harding College seemed to prove the prophecy true, but from that point, the season coasted steadily downhill. The string of losses to arch-rival Belmont College was extended to seven, with 95-81 and 83-70 defeats.

Senior Bill Burton and junior Rick Clark served admirably as the team's co-captains, with Clark leading all rebounders with a 10.5 average. Rippetoe made Lipscomb basketball history as he broke a nineteen-year-old scoring mark with 520 points, a 20.8 average. The old record was Cecil Majors' 496 points in the 1951 season. Bruce Bowers, Farrell Gean and Roy Pate rounded out the team's starters, with Larry Lingerfelt and Butch Stinson seeing frequent action as substitutes.

The close of the season also brought an end to the tenure of Ken Dugan, who had been handling the basketball coaching chores since the sudden resignation of Guy Phipps in December, 1967. He can now devote full time to his positions as head baseball coach and coordinator of intercollegiate athletics. As of press time Dugan's successor had not been named, although several men had been interviewed.

The outlook for next year appears much the same, since recruiting was cut drastically with the coaching change. Nonetheless, Lipscomb's basketball fans' hopes may be bolstered by the fine junior varsity record and the return of all but two senior lettermen.

First row: Larry Lingerfelt, Farrell Gean, Butch Stinson, Eddie Baker. Second row: Ron Rippetoe, Roy Pate, Bill Burton, Bob Burton, Rick Clark, Bruce Bowers.

The excellence of an athletic program depends in part on the success of the minor sports, and Coach Duane Slaughter has pushed Lipscomb to the forefront in badminton competition.

Major tournaments were won by George Barber and Diane Slaughter in both doubles and singles, and other team members registered high finishes in competition with the nation's best. George and Diane also captured the mixed doubles title in the Mid-South Intercollegiate Tournament.

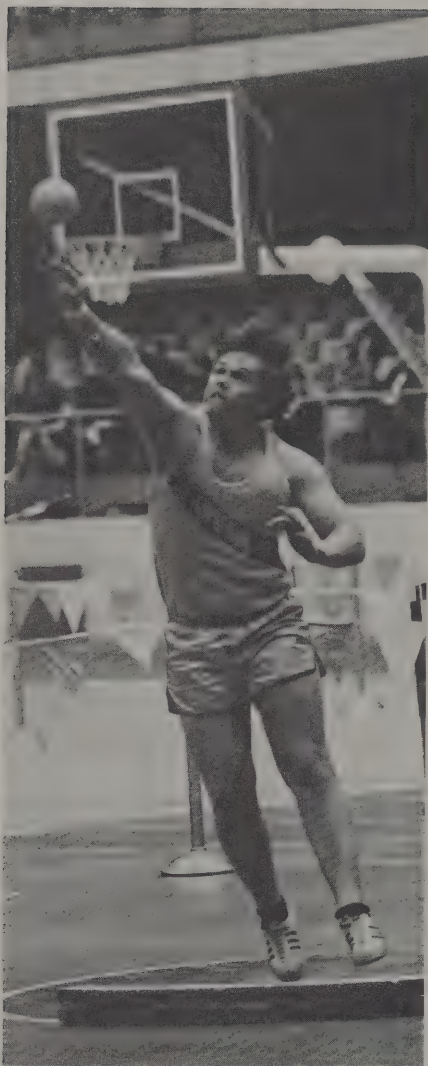

Barber won the Nashville Open Doubles title with his partner, and Diane won first place in women's singles in the Nashville Open and the State Closed Tournament. Patricia Shearry also captured first place in the consolation ladies singles in the Nashville Open.

BADMINTON

TRACK

Coach Steve Barron shouldered a heavy responsibility in his first year as Lipscomb's track coach—that of defending the indoor and outdoor state championships and the NAIA District 24 championship.

However, showing no letdown following the retirement of former coach Bailey Heflin, the Bisons began the season with a strong defense of their TIAC Indoor title at Knoxville in December. Sporting a 4-4 record against tough dual and triangular meet competition, including Tennessee Tech and Middle Tennessee State, the Bisons displayed the ability to get up for the big meets, capturing the first annual Lipscomb Invitational and the TIAC outdoor title.

With more depth overall and greater strength in the field events than ever before, Lipscomb looked forward confidently to the district championships in May.

The accent was on youth for the 1969-70 Bisons, as the squad was dominated by freshmen. The only returning lettermen were senior co-captains Buddy Martin and Ken Durham, junior sprinter Louis Allen, junior distance man Ronnie Cope and sophomore pole vaulter Glen Verner. Martin, the most versatile trackman in the school's history, and Allen, the fastest Bison runner ever, continued as the top point-getters throughout the season.

Five members of the team held or established school records this season: Louis Allen (100 and 220), Buddy Martin (440 and 440 hurdles), Ken Durham (triple jump), Shannon Roberts (long jump) and Fred Walker (discus), with Chuck Allyn threatening the school mark in the shot put.

Ronnie Cope, Steve Hawkinson and Perry Stites paced the strong distance corps for the Bisons, while James Mitchell, David Craig and Steve Groome ran middle distance and the relays. Rounding out the field events were Sandy Saunders, Danny Allen, Dennis Deaton and Ron Yancey.

Dr. Robert Hooper, history professor turned coach, began this spring the rebuilding of Lipscomb's once-dominant tennis program.

Returning lettermen David Mayo, who plays in the number one position, Tom Haddock, Glen Nichols and Gary Jordan combined with newcomer Steve Tatum, now in the number two spot, to face a stiff schedule. Hooper had high hopes for a good showing in the district competition.

Miss Betty Jean Webster combined the talents of three freshmen with her top two returning players, Joy McMeen and Jane Powers, and first-year player Lois Mead, as she faced the task of building a women's intercollegiate team. The three freshmen, Marcia Corley, Paula Hembree and Nancy Boyce, played together in high school and should develop into a strong combination.

TENNIS

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Welcome to Onion Dell, sports fans, home of the David Lipscomb Bisons. It's a beautiful mid-April day, quite a relief after yesterday's downpour. Because of the bad weather the Bisons are scheduled for a triple header, yes, three games. With Coach Ken Dugan's forty-game schedule there is no time for rematches, so the Bisons play them when they can.

Fortunately, the team is in good condition, and the pitching staff is strong. Butch Stinson leads all pitchers with a 4-1 record, followed by Steve Garner's 3-0 tally and Ronnie Albright's 3-1 won-lost record. Albright has registered several saves in relief, while Danny Burns and Mark Doody are approaching strong mid-season form.

At the plate Bison bats have been booming. Jim Minnick has engineered a successful comeback, batting over .400 after twenty games. Farrell Gean and Dave Lindsey both are challenging the home run record while batting above .300. Ted Jamison, Steve Garner and co-captain Jack Bledsoe also are batting well over .300, and the other co-captain Dave Evans has begun to rally with frequent hits.

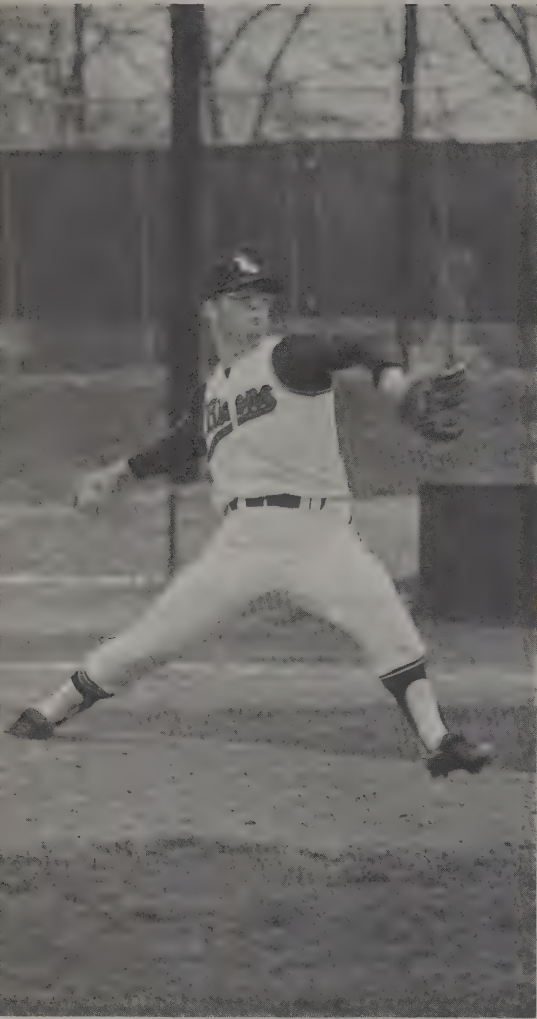

It looks like a great season for Lipscomb's baseballers. And now just before the start of today's games. . . .

BASEBALL

GOLF

About the Ides of March a group of Lipscomb men known as the "Duffers" shine up their golf clubs, stock up on little white balls and prepare to hit the links of Harpeth Hills Golf Club. They diligently prepare themselves for another season of driving, finding, chipping, finding and putting and putting and putting.

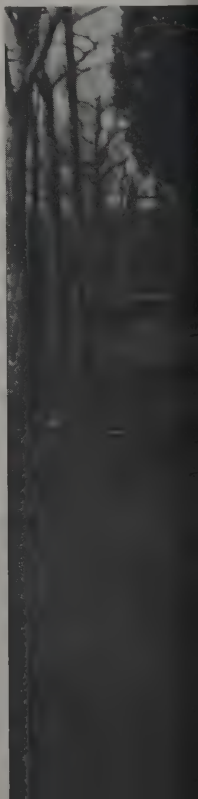

This year for the first time Coach Ralph Samples has had enough depth on the team to promote a competitive spirit within the team itself.

With this spirit the team looked hopefully for a spot in the NAIA district tournament. Samples feels that the experience of Bill Castle and Dick Morris should give the team a berth in the tourney.

The outcome of the season could never be determined. Even with a good start, no one will venture a guess. This is a game where a single dubbed stroke, a drive a few yards shorter than the opponent's or a putt missed by a fraction of an inch can spell defeat. One stroke often makes the difference.

MEN'S INTRAMURALS

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of softball; and in the summer, to tennis; and in the fall, to football; and in the winter, to basketball. Intramural athletics occupy a major role in campus life all the year 'round, as energetic collegians seek diversions to escape the tedium of study.

The juniors captured the tackle football championship by virtue of their convincing victories over the other three class teams. Quarterback Jim Prince and running back Burton Elrod paced the winners, and senior Steve Peden notched his fourth consecutive spot on the league all-star team. In touch football action, it was the Bucs who emerged victorious over all other competition.

pionship game by James Phillips' Cavaliers over the favored Knights, coached by Paul Agee. The Cavaliers then went on to sweep the city extramural championship tournament, under the coaching leadership of varsity member Bill Burton. Phillips, J. C. Fassino, Presley Ramsey, Billy Williams and Donnie Phillips turned in outstanding performances for the top four teams in the league. The A league crown was won by Jim Mincey's Bucs, as the Knights again occupied the runner-up spot.

With volleyball action already underway, intramural athletes looked forward to a busy spring schedule as outlined by 'Fessor Boyce. Tennis, golf, track, archery and badminton afforded areas of competition to meet every interest and ability of Lipscomb students.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS

"Steerike three!" and another femme fatale of the softball set hits the bench.

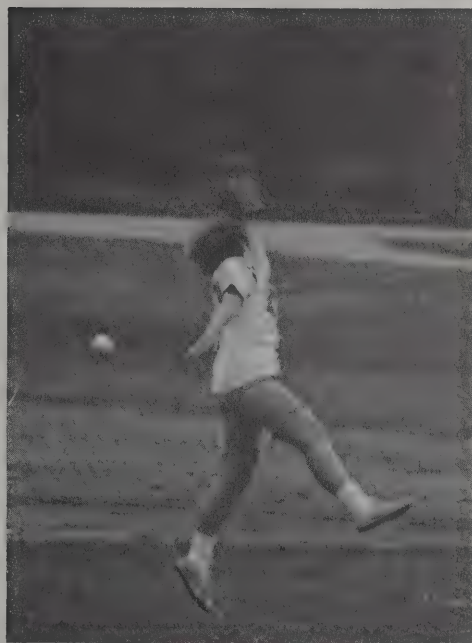

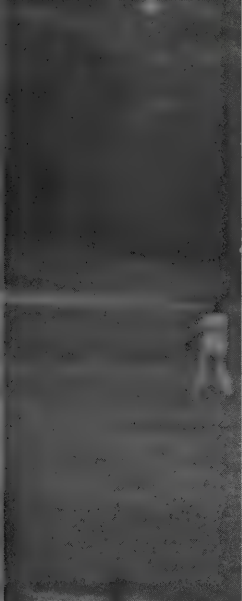

Weekly pairings once again found social club and independent women's teams occupied in intramural competition. One-of-a-kind team names, combined with the ardor of mid-terms, made intramural sports the perfect tension release.

Basketball activity saw Lindy Gardner take "Most Valuable Player" honors and Peggy Roberts win the free-throw contest.

The all-time favorite, volleyball, initiated a clinic aiming at women's intercollegiate participation.

Adams Leads Circle K International

"For to be idle is to become a stranger unto the seasons, and to step out of life's procession, . . ."

Life's procession is a march of much greater significance than books and academic achievement. College is a creative process in which an unsure adolescent is transformed into a confident adult.

Extracurricular organizations not only shape a school's personality, they also offer a laboratory for discovering human nature.

They are a giving thing, and there are those who give much. Lipscomb becomes a part of them, and they become a part of Lipscomb.

Mike Adams is a giver.

He has been a class officer, a varsity track letterman, a varsity debater, a member of the President's student council, and president of Pi Kappa Delta speech fraternity. Mike is probably most widely known for his leadership in Circle K, and more particularly, as international president of that organization.

"Extracurricular organizations and activities must play an integral part in the educational process. There are more opportunities for personal growth outside the classroom than inside."

Becoming an educated individual has greater implications than knowing Einstein's theory of relativity or grammar according to Harbrace. Personality growth is involved, and a school cannot be an effective educator while ignoring the spiritual, social, and physical student.

"There are a number of areas that must be fulfilled to develop a well-rounded person. Extracurricular involvement provides these areas; relative interaction, social responsibility, and a certain degree of political activism."

The college can offer and encourage a wide variety of activities; it cannot regulate a student's participation. What position should the various non-academic organizations and activities take in the student's college years? Can he fulfill his educational obligation without them?

"This depends on each student's educational goals and standards. Any student can reach his educational potential without the extracurricular environment, but I think it is important to build the body, soul, and spirit as well as mind."

Mike's recent experience has been with collegiate organizations on the national and international level. His travels have offered exposure to a wide range of service and non-service groups in addition to Circle K.

"Almost all campus organizations are declining in membership or are, at best, holding. The ones that have the most promise are those oriented toward humanitarian effort."

Mike comments that in this situation Lipscomb students could become leaders. However, the student body as a whole has fallen far short of its potential in becoming involved in community, campus and religious life.

Mike has been impressed with the opportunities for development on the other side of the ivy-covered walls. He would like to see more students involved outside the realm of Lipscomb, reaching out to the specific Nashville community and to beyond.

"There is a tremendous potential for individual growth at colleges such as Lipscomb which are based on right ideals and are small enough to allow each to assert himself in an individual role of leadership."

"The things that this school and its representatives should stand for are many of the ideals the world is looking for in people."

"I've been able to do things here and grow here in a way far superior to what I would have achieved in a larger institution."

Each student must, as Mike Adams, find his own way of giving.

Interview

Developing a workable and valuable citizenship is a giving thing—a goal that will not be realized with a static energy and an apathetic out-view of the world. The Civinettes, a collegiate women's group affiliated with the Civitan effort, have worked on idea after idea all year. Good citizenship can be cultivated by working together for common unselfish goals. Throwing themselves into their idea, evenings were spent in song at the Lakeshore Home for the Aged, and the Christmas season found them stuffing stockings for children at Cloverbottom. They worked with crippled children at a local agency, collected for the Heart Fund, and assisted financially in several needed areas. Among those recognized as their citizen of the month were Mr. Kennedy, Lipscomb's first ARA-Slater manager, and Dean Cook.

CIVINETTES

Semi-annual blood drives have become a regular event for the Collegiate Civitans. These civic-minded college men have decided that helping others, giving of themselves and developing workable human relationships are important in today's troubled world if our tomorrows are going to be worthwhile. Jim McMeen, president, set this year's pace of day to day efforts ranging from last October's and April's blood drives to yesterday's fund drive to passing out ballots in chapel today—a variety of situations to meet a variety of needs. Helping Civitan celebrate its fiftieth national anniversary, Collegiate Civitan continues to maintain its motto —“builders of good citizenship.”

CIVITAN

Winter quarter witnessed the organization of the first women's civic club on the college level to be affiliated with Kiwanis International. This year's president, Nancy Wooten, accepted and succeeded in the awesome task of nurturing an infant idea into a strong organization. The K-ettes purpose, service to their school and community, involved them with little sisters at Tennessee Preparatory School, tutorees from downtown Nashville, children from the Metro Children's Home, children and adults at Cloverbottom, and needles, thread and fabric that created needed clothing. Valentine parties, Easter egg hunts, and shining eyes completed the picture and the successful idea.

K-ETTES

CIRCLE K

Building a better community, a better school, a better society through service. Lipscomb's Circle K men continued to distinguish themselves in the community throughout this year. One of their members, Mike Adams, was elected International Circle K president, a position which took him globe-hopping from Rome to Saigon to the White House. Several of Lipscomb's Circle K men held positions of leadership within the Kentucky-Tennessee district as well as on the national level. Realizing the opportunities and needs for women in community service, Lipscomb's Circle K chapter began the first collegiate women's civic club affiliated with the K group. Circle K's year of service was launched with a successful "Americanism Week" complete with bunting and a tremendous paper napkin and chicken wire rendition of "Old Glory." An effort to provide drug education and continuing work with children from poor and limited environments filled out the year's efforts.

ΦΒΛ

Christmas gifts for orphans, pounding pavement for the Heart Fund, banquets, pledging, weekend state park outings—these seem unlikely companions for the world of dollars, cents, and ledgers. Yet, this year, the women of Phi Beta Lambda have sought to define, develop and expand their role in the business community through active participation in their immediate community. A national business sorority, Phi Beta Lambda was not only involved in these activities, but also took on the more mundane challenges of compiling the student directory.

ΑΚΨ

Alpha Kappa Psi is the national fraternity correlated with business majors. Its David Lipscomb chapter is one of the largest organizations on campus, as well as one of the hardest working. Projects for this year included the Christmas house for orphans and co-production of the invaluable student directory. Toward the end of the fall quarter the annual banquet was held at which Mrs. David Buffington was crowned sweetheart and Mrs. Axel Swang was presented a silver tray in appreciation for her hospitality.

BISONETTES

One hundred and twenty-eight feet belonging to 64 well-trained, coordinated coeds add entertainment to each home basketball game. The Bisonettes even traveled to Seawanee to support the DLC Bisons, and because of their marching excellence, were invited to perform at the municipal auditorium for a Harlem Magicians exhibition game. This in itself is a credit to DLC and the Bisonettes. A well-known tradition, the purple and gold battalion is the past, present, and future spirit of the DLC basketball season.

CHEERLEADERS

Cartwheels, new chants, and the Dixie routine set the crowd in motion for the game. Every home encounter found the cheerleaders straining voices and muscles, suffering for every defeat, rejoicing for every victory, and keeping school spirit alive. Not only did the Bison cheerleaders show their own spirit, but they also encouraged outside support by presenting the spirit stick at each home game to the campus club displaying the best support for the team.

A CAPPELLA

After hours of intense practice, tension is built, silence is achieved, and fifty two voices harmonize under the direction of Paul Downey. The A Cappella chorus stirred audiences at every performance with both their well-known and unique hymns and were featured for almost every major campus event of the year. A tour of appearances in Georgia, Alabama, and Florida highlighted the year for the group who, with their remarkable voices, serve as inspirational ambassadors for Lipscomb.

Smiling faces in gay costumes combined with a moving drumbeat brought a change of pace to the Lipscomb campus. The Contemporary Chorale, alias The Eleventh Hour, delighted audiences of all ages with their lively dress and modern arrangements directed by Paul Downey. Professional polish in performance made the young group's rendition of the Aquarius theme for the Festival of Hearts an outstanding appearance of the year.

THE ELEVENTH HOUR

Serving as the U. N. of the social club world; the Interclub Council meets to coordinate and unite interests of the various Greek letter clubs. Successful negotiations and planning resulted in the annual club fair, homecoming festivities, Singarama and interclub competitions proving communication can work to keep campus life alive.

INTERCLUB COUNCIL

PRESIDENT'S STUDENT COUNCIL

Cooperation and communication—important elements in any viable system. Following the practice of many past years, the President's Student Council worked together to better Lipscomb through the exchange of viewpoints between students and administration. For the club presidents, honor students, and student leaders that are a part of the Council, the sessions' successes were based on each individual's scale of evaluation. However, the lessons learned about people—their complexities, varieties, mannerisms, and personalities—were valuable life-lessons helping to pave a more solid foundation for understanding.

BACKLOG

Hurry, hurry, hurry! Right this way to the big deadline—Backlog '70! After a number of successful engagements at the Associated Press Convention in Miami, Editor-in-Chief Ken Slater returned to Nashville with his renowned repertoire of ingenious designs. He brought with him new ideas and styles never before seen on the Lipscomb campus and created the colossal 1970 Backlog with its stupendous modern style that upholds the time-honored traditions of D.L.C.

BABBLER

What's that in the coed's hands?! It's a letter! It's a magazine! No, it's the Babbler!! Ah, but little does the reader know that this All-American newspaper serving the great campus metropolis really results from the hard work of its mild-mannered editor, Gerald Jerkins, and his eager young assistants, Lee Maddux and Randal Burton. Neither does the average student suspect that the Babbler is the secret love of two fair reporters, Linda Bumgardner and Deby Samuels. The Babbler, the champion of the administration, defender of the school—can it keep its true identity a secret or will the reader discover that well-guarded mystery surrounding its publication?

HONORARY SOCIETIES AND CAREER CLUBS

Alpha Psi Omega • drama

Pi Delta Epsilon • journalism

Phi Alpha Theta • history

Pi Kappa Delta • speech

Giving of their special abilities to encourage greater excellence in themselves and others. Lipscomb's four honorary fraternities in the areas of speech, drama, journalism, and history completed another year of efforts to further specialized personal development. Those honored in drama by membership to Alpha Psi Omega transmitted their high standards to the major productions "All the Way Home" and "Hello, Dolly" as well as the several short Wednesday night performances. Pi Kappa Delta, the speech fraternity, continued to provide the talent necessary for the several debate honors won during the year. The International History Fraternity, Phi Alpha Theta, honored a very few students with membership this year because of their insistence upon rigorously high standards. Social events mixed pleasantly with a state convention at which several student papers were read finished their year of history. Pi Delta Epsilon continued to evidence its desire to further the development of excellence in journalism. Lipscomb's fourth annual publications workshop, hosted by Pi Delta Epsilon and the press club, was held in April with over 250 high school and college journalists in attendance. Lipscomb's own journalists continued to develop their skills by producing an award winning newspaper and yearbook.

Definite interest prevails when one decides upon a major. The clubs are of added value and interest to specialists of each field. When one is sincerely interested in a subject he can never reach fulfillment or total satisfaction.

BAND

Sincere love for music is the backbone of Burley Bowman's concert band. Long hours of practice were worthwhile when the band appeared in concert the latter part of winter quarter. During spring quarter the band went on tour to the northern states to share good southern music with our neighbors.

STUDENT BODY OFFICERS

Linda Wiser

Ken Durham

The slow South Carolina drawl and dry wit of Ken Durham became a familiar chapel feature to the 1969 freshmen. Ken, along with his pint-sized side-kick, Linda Wiser, served as student body president and secretary for summer and fall quarters. Filling the key positions for winter and spring were Bruce Breegle and Vicki Bruer, who launched a noble and vigorous campaign to revitalize campus activity.

SOCIAL CLUBS

Rush parties, a big brother to tell your troubles to, a completed pledge book, a lavalier, a weary but happy pledge is initiated. Campus social clubs are involved in almost every aspect of student life. Remembering the projects, the parties, the annual banquet, the weekend trip—all make the year most meaningful to each member. Homecoming, forensics, athletics, and Singarama—all involve the many talents collected under each Greek letter name. Social Club life has stabilized after losing its charter enthusiasm, but it still remains the hub of campus activity.

EDITOR'S EPITAPH

A time of paradox. To me this phrase describes the whole task of editing Backlog '70. As I sit here in the publications suite, I see eight months that have vanished; yet I remember many single lingering hours. I see thousands of ideas that I could have used; I see the final copy.

How can I ever thank the people responsible for what lies between these cardboard covers? First, I want to recognize my associate editors, Sue Ann Deese and Linda Sherwood. Without their previous yearbook experience this converted newspaper man would not have been able to meet the challenge confronting him.

The backbone of the staff was the section editors. Freshmen Kathy Wallace, Jan Bellar and Ernie Hyne handled their assignments as if they had worked on the Backlog staff for several years.

The experience of Rebecca Holmes, Emily Presley and Paula Ellis was invaluable. And it was Craig McNett, in the sports department, who kept me on my toes. To John Hutcheson, Jr. goes a special thanks for his understanding and moral support as advisor. Norris Collins and staff also deserve praise for their fine photography. All of the above contributed immeasurably to this volume.

Highest honors, however, go to a special group of students. They might be called the Backlog's "silent majority." These people formulated ideas, drew layouts, typed proofs and did thousands of other tasks for me. They are the real Backlog '70.

Finally, I want to thank three very special assistants. The first two made possible my becoming an editor at Lipscomb through guidance, teaching and understanding for twenty-two long years. Thank you Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Slater. The third special assistant is a former Babbler editor. She gave me a start in collegiate journalism four years ago and continues to be a lifesaver. I thank Elaine Daniel for her correction, criticism and confidence.

One year ago I had a dream. I wanted to produce a yearbook for the students of David Lipscomb College—one they could proudly show to other people and one that could revive past memories. I wanted a book designed not to please professional raters or win awards, just one to satisfy 2,200 great men and women.

I will know in a few weeks if I have succeeded; I hope so.
